I have been been Director General of the Office of Economic Affairs of Liechtenstein since 2019, responsible for a broad portfolio including labour market policy, employment services, labour law, occupational safety, commerce, consumer protection, intellectual property, gambling regulation and energy matters. Previously, I served as Director of the Office for International Financial Affairs from 2011 to 2019 and acted before as Special Delegate of the Government for international financial and tax negotiations from 2009-2011.

Before that, I worked as a diplomat in the Office of Foreign Affairs, covering human rights, international and European law, foreign economic policy, security and crime prevention. I contributed to major or led negotiations with the EU, including Liechtenstein's association to Schengen/Dublin (2008) and the tax transparency agreement of 2015.
